Business Continuity Planning for Flu Pandemic

A leading international bank is planning for as little as 50 per cent of staff during a pandemic wave that could last for up to three months

How would your organisation deal with the consequences of a pandemic

Experts tell us that it is not a question of will it happen but when will it happen.

The impact of a flu pandemic will depend on how well we have prepared for it – both nationally and in our individual businesses or organisations.

The objective of this Conference is to increase awareness about the nature and implications of a flu pandemic. It will feature the work that is being done at a national level in terms of preparedness and will identify what business and other organisations should be doing now.

Every organisation should have a plan, which has considered the implications of a pandemic ranging from personnel issues, through supply chain difficulties to sales and product or service delivery.

This conference will appeal to senior management in all types of organisations and to anyone who is concerned with risk and crisis management including those responsible for

Risk Management	Emergency / Continuity Planning
Human Resources	Facilities Management
Health & Safety	Communications / Public Relations
